Arts, Literature and Communication (ALC) is a two-year pre-university program that will prepare you for advanced studies in Communication and Media, Fine and Applied Arts, Social Studies, Educational Sciences, Literature, or Languages.

ALC provides you with an excellent opportunity to develop your imagination, technical skills, and critical thinking, using an innovative multimedia and multi-disciplinary approach. It is a flexible program designed to allow you to choose from a great variety of courses in film production, photography, cultural studies, podcasting, acting, languages, literature, theatre, sound design, journalism, philosophy, and many more theory and production courses.

ALC teachers are professionals in their field and our facilities are fully equipped to allow you to work on video projects, film animation, podcasts, digital art, darkroom and digital photography. You will be able to develop your skills in Spanish and Italian in our up-to-date language labs. You will also have access to creative writing classrooms, a fully equipped and newly renovated theatre, as well as an auditorium with a large screen for film and media studies.

WHAT DISTINGUISHES THE PROGRAM OFFERED AT JAC FROM OTHERS LIKE IT?

What makes John Abbott's ALC Program unique is its commitment to providing students with flexibility and the opportunity for self-discovery. Our multidisciplinary approach will allow you to choose from a broad range of courses, with many opportunities to discover which creative, artistic, and cultural areas you will thrive in.

During your studies, you have the option to specialize in one or more disciplines. If you successfully complete five ALC elective courses in one of the three areas of specialization (Media & Communications, Literature & Theatre Arts, and Culture & Multilingualism), you can apply for a letter of recognition from the Program Dean acknowledging your achievement. You can also choose to explore various subjects without necessarily specializing in one area.

Either way, you would have the opportunity to register for exciting theoretical and hands-on courses like video production, animation, Italian, photography, acting, creative writing, podcasting, Spanish, theatre, literary studies, philosophy, Film studies, creative writing, drawing and painting, and more!
